Extract from Road Laws of Missouri.
In force June 21st, 1893. Sec. 7822 (Laws 1887, page 25). And it shall be the duty of every road owner to keep all roads in his district clear of all obstructions, and cause to be cut down and removed, between the 15th day of July and the 15th day of August, of each year, all weeds or other obstructions calculated to impede or obstruct travel thereon; and immediately on being informed that any person has obstructed any road in his district by any of the means named in this article, or otherwise, it shall be his duty to give the notice provided for in section 7827 of this article, which will be found in the same laws on page 254.

Sec. 7827. If any person or persons shall willfully or knowingly obstruct any public road, by throwing or depositing (bees or other) or other brush, trees or bushes in said road, or on the sides or ditches thereof, or by fencing across or upon the right of way of the same, or by planting any hedge within the lines established for such road, or changing the location thereof, otherwise than is provided for by this article or shall obstruct said road or highway in any other manner whatsoever, he or they shall each pay a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered by indictment or information. Any person who shall obstruct any public road by any of the means in this section named, or otherwise, and shall fail or refuse, within five days after being notified by the road owner of the district in which the obstructed road lies, requiring him or them to remove such obstruction, to remove the same, shall pay the sum of five dollars for each and every day he or they shall maintain such obstruction or permit the same to remain in such road, or fail to remove the same after being notified as aforesaid, to be recovered by indictment or by information before a justice of the peace.

A Household Treasure.
D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough Remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Clark O. Proud's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

Gnawing the File.
The Louisville Courier-Journal makes the confession that the party to which it belongs "solely protested that they would give the country at least two years rest from tariff legislation." How did they keep this pledge? In the first place, by a tariff bill that the president, elected by that party, regarded so obnoxious that he refused to sign it, and it became an enactment by the law of cowardice. He refused either to sign it or veto it. The best the party could do was to attempt to strike down important American industries, but succeeded only in striking down their own administration of the government. By listening to the voice of populism, and by saying to the populists, "walk into my parlor," they enacted an odious and unjustly discriminating income tax law, which Democratic judges of the supreme court were forced by self-respect to annul, and leave the government $30,000,000 in the lurch, between this and the last day of the month. No wonder self-respecting Democratic newspapers are cursing the folly that gave away the first opportunity in thirty years to show whether or not they were fit and capable of conducting this great government of ours.

O. W. O. Hardman, Sheriff of Tyler Co., W. Va., appreciates a good thing and does not hesitate to say so. He was almost prostrated with a cold when he procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says: "It gave me prompt relief. I find it to be an invaluable remedy for coughs and colds." For sale by Clark O. Proud.

What's the Matter, Anyhow?
The most foolish thing that an American can do, is in the eyes of an American, is to put up a straw man for the mere sake of knocking him down. In these busy days it is equally foolish to set up an argument just for the sake of knocking it into smithereens. The fellows who say we need more silver dollars are about in that fix. We have now $601,000,000 in gold coin, according to the last report of the director of the national mint; $460,000,000 in paper money and $624,000,000 in coined silver dollars. If the gold coin were distributed it would make $9.81 for each man, woman and child; of silver there would be to go for the same kind of a distribution. There are many millions of silver dollars in the treasury yet and that none seems to want or care to use, and therefore, what's the use in clamoring for more of these dollars to be coined until we can induce the people to use what we have already coined? That's the simple, common sense, everyday style of looking at it, and if people who are clamoring so loudly would only stop and think there would be less arguing and more business going on.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations Boston for this occasion. For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Canine, General Passenger and Ticket Agent St. Louis Mo.

An Insurance Decision.
Judge Caldwell, of the United States circuit court, has made an important decision on insurance policies which will have a far reaching effect, and is of interest to all. The decision is as follows: "The rule is that if before or after the policy is issued the agent has notice of the amount of insurance which the insured is carrying or intends to carry on the property insured, and makes no objection, then the company cannot be stopped from claiming a forfeiture after there is a loss, upon the ground that such prior or subsequent insurance, of which its agent had notice, was not informed in writing on the policy. The company cannot play fast and loose. It cannot issue a policy which is valid for the purpose of receiving the premium, but invalid when it comes to pay a loss. To deliver a policy with full knowledge of facts upon which its validity may be disputed and then insist upon these facts as ground of avoidance is to attempt a fraud. There is no rule that requires the business world to deal with insurance agents on the assumption that they are reasonably intelligent and honest men, and the company cannot expect payment of the loss merely because the insured acted on this presumption."

The Farmington Times expects a grand Republican victory in this state next year and gives good reasons for the faith it has. It says: "During the last twenty years, the Republican party in Missouri made gains at every election, and at the same rate of progress a Republican victory was due in 1894, and it arrived on time. Conservative Democrats have gained 25,000 votes by immigration from the north and northwest, and the conduct of the Democracy at the regular and extra session of the legislature and the recklessness of the national administration will cost the crazy old party 25,000 more. This, if true, will give the Republicans in Missouri more than 50,000 majority in 1896. This sounds big, but it is reasonable when every thing is considered."

GOVERNOR Stone of Missouri tried the special session racket, but met with poor success. Governor Altgeld might have had the benefit of Missouri's experience had he wanted to take outside advice.

We recommend Dr. Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure because we believe it a safe and reliable remedy. It's good effects are shown at once in cases of Colic, Cholera and similar complaints. T. S. Hinde, Oregon, Mo.

As much as Democrats may attempt to do, they cannot blot out the figure of the treasury department, which shows under President Harrison's administration $233,000,000 were paid on the public debt, and that the public debt under President Cleveland's administration has been increased over $100,000,000; or that under the McKinley law there was provided a revenue of $5,000,000 in excess of the requirements of the government, while under the Gorman law there will be a deficit of from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. This is the record of two administrations in a nutshell.

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to children, and it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clark O. Proud, druggist.

The Baltic Canal, which was opened for public traffic on July 1, is more remarkable as a financial success than as a engineering achievement. It has been built in seven years, and the actual cost has not exceeded the estimates, $39,000,000. It connects the North Sea with the Baltic by a waterway about sixty-one miles in length. The engineering difficulties have been few, and it has been possible to construct the canal without locks, except at the ends, where they were needed for protection against unusual tides and currents. There will be a saving of 320 miles effected between Kiel and Hamburg by the canal route; and for vessels from Holland and England the distance to Baltic ports will be shortened about 250 miles. The commerce is huge enough to justify the belief that this important work, which is about to be opened with stately ceremonies and splendid marine pageants, will be a successful financial enterprise.

The Crawfish and the Levees.
"Whenever I hear of a break in the levee down in my district," said C. Stone of Greenville, Miss., "I know that nine chances to one crawfish have caused it. The assertion may sound slightly exaggerated but it is a fact, nevertheless, that the devilish little crawfish work more danger to the levees than the water. On a big rise, when the bed of the river is stretched from embankment to embankment, the crawfish burrow into the levee and live there in the moist earth. They multiply faster than maggots, and loosen up the earthen fastenings. The levee may be completely sodded with grass, and you see no external evidence of the damage going on within, but when the next big rise comes you will see it. I have frequently known the water to break through the levee two or three feet from the top, and you can attribute it to nothing but the destructive work of crawfish. This was particularly true of the levee at Offutt's in 1889, when a portion of the town of Greenville was submerged."

"The builder of the levee in the future will have to take into account the crawfish as one of his most stubborn foes."

There is great danger in neglecting Colic, Cholera and similar complaints. An absolutely prompt and safe cure is found in Dr. Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure. T. S. Hinde, Oregon, Mo.

Flowing Under Clover.
Clover should not be plowed in until the second year, when it is fully grown. The bulk of the valuable matter in a clover crop is not produced until the second year, when the roots are as large as they ever will be, and have largest amount of nitrogenous matter in them. So that a good practice is to cut the first crop of the second year for hay, and let the plant seed, when it is mature and ripe, and in the best condition for proving the land. The second growth, even, may be cut for seed, or it may be left on the ground to stock in this way with seed, which will grow when the land is turned back again years after in the regular rotation. Then the clover will grow considerably by the time when the land is plowed in the spring, when the best crop to follow is potatoes, and after this wheat. If manure is to be used on the potatoes, it will be desirable to spread it during the winter, when there is time and opportunity for it.

Department of State, May 6, 1806—Sir: In consequence of the representation of a director of the Bank of the United States that considerable purchases have been made of dollars coined at the mint for the purpose of exporting them, and as it is probable that further purchases and exportations will be made, the President (Thomas Jefferson) directs that all the silver to be coined at the mint shall be of small denomination, so that the value of the largest piece shall not exceed one-half a dollar. Robert Louis Stevenson's Last Novel.
Robert Louis Stevenson's last novel, "St. Ives," was left at his death practically completed so it is stated by those who have seen the manuscript. Many chapters had even received the author's final revision. Stevenson had been at work upon this novel for more than a year, and the first half of it had been entirely rewritten several times.

The novel is said to deal with the adventures of a Frenchman captured in the Peninsula War and shut up in Edinburgh Castle. A love affair between him and a Scottish maid leads to the maiden's account between him and a fellow-prisoner; and his escape from the prison, are a few of the episodes that promise a romance of an absorbing interest as any Stevenson has produced.

"St. Ives" will be published serially in McClure's Magazine; the price of which, by the way, is to be immediately reduced to 10 cents a copy.

There is one medicine that will cure immediately. We refer to Dr. Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure for all Summer Complaints. No delay, no disappointment, no failure. T. S. Hinde, Oregon, Mo.

The prosperity of the country in the immediate future will be very greatly promoted by a good corn crop this year and the present indications give favorable promise that we shall have a large yield of this cereal. In 1889, the big crop year, the yield was over 2,112,000,000 bushels, produced from an area of a little more than 75,000,000 acres. In 1891, another big year, the corn area was over 75,000,000 acres and the crop slightly above 2,000,000,000 bushels. It is thought that the average this year will be fully as large as four years ago and the prevailing conditions warrant the expectation that the production will be quite as great as in 1891, and possibly larger. A realization of this promise would do more than perhaps any other one thing to insure a return of general prosperity and to contribute to the benefit of all classes of the population.

Death in Pension Cases.
The department of the interior has just decided a question in regard to pension claimants of great interest to them. It holds that where the death is alleged from a mere presumption of long absence, the facts and circumstances must be such as to establish the fact of death beyond a reasonable doubt. In other words, the mere fact of absence for any length of time will not be equivalent to definite and actual proof of death, and will not dispense with other proof of circumstances tending to establish the fact of death beyond a reasonable doubt. This is going much farther than the common law rule in regard to the presumption of death through absence. The old, common law rule was that an absence of seven years, without any intelligence whatever of the person whose death was claimed, and under such circumstances as would lead to the belief that if the person were alive he would have been heard from, would constitute an absolute presumption of death. The rule just announced by the interior department will make it very difficult to establish the fact of death beyond a reasonable doubt, where it is based upon an absence of the person whose death is in question.

Afraid of Pneumonia.
Mrs. Catherine Black, of Le Roy, N. Y., took a severe cold. The physician feared Pneumonia. She took one bottle of Parks' Cough Syrup and says: "It acted like magic. Stopped my cough and I am perfectly well now. I recommend it to everyone for Cough and Lung Trouble as I believed it saved my life." Sold by Clark O. Proud.

Moral Influence of Farm Life.
Hon. Solon J. Thatcher said to a Kansas audience: "It is safe to say that every question which contains within its solution what Emerson calls morality has found its staunchest advocates and defenders, numerically at least, in rural communities. The seclusion of the farmer's life, the evenings devoted to books and current literature, the anxiety for lives of probity and usefulness for his children, the desire to make a lasting home, the planting of bright and hopeful thoughts in earnest, inquiring hearts, the room for meditation upon the teachings and readings of the night before, as many an almost mechanical duty fills the hours—all these aids and impulses bestow upon the farmer and his children opportunities for right learning and right view not possessed by those whose nights are full of intrusions and slurring amusements or enjoyments."

Under the caption of "Degeneration and Evolution," three papers of remarkable interest were given in the North American Review for July. Dr. Max Nordau in "A Reply to my Critics," answers trenchantly the strictures made upon his Degeneration by Keynon Cox, Anton Soud, and Mayo W. Hazeltine; the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt reviews brilliantly "Kid's Social Evolution," and the eminent and well known English writer Edmund Gosse, writes ably upon "The Decay of Literary Taste."

In your blood is the cause of that tired, languid feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes rich, red blood and gives renewed vigor.

A Swift Flyer.
Though the petrol is swift, the frigate-bird is far swifter. Seamen generally believe that the frigate bird can start at daybreak with the trade winds from the coast of Africa and roam the same night upon the American shore.
